

Election November 2008

WIRELESS NEWS FLASH

Obama Is A Sensual Mother-Pucker

NEW YORK (Wireless Flash) — Barack Obama is a better kisser than John McCain, but it hasn't always been that way.

According to kissing pro Andréa Demirjian, a person's kissing skills can be determined by the way their lips move when they talk.

Judging from recent debates, she says McCain is an "awkward, stiff kisser" because his upper lip doesn't move much when he speaks, while Obama — who's lips move around plenty — appears to be a "sensual kisser."

However, Demirjian notes that the age and health of the candidates also affects their smooching skills, and insists that McCain hasn't always been a lousy lip-locker.

Based on his charm as a young man in the Navy during his prime, she believes the Republican was once a "playful, mischievous kisser."

She adds, "He was the kind of guy who would goose a girl, dip her, and then kiss her."

Obama's pucker past is a bit more tight-lipped.

Demirjian explains, "He had a slow courtship with Michelle Obama, so kissing is an intense expression of love for him."

CONTACT: Andréa Demirjian; *; (212) 696-9324; andrea@kissingbook.com; www.kissingbook.com